No kidding!!!!!! You really expect us to believe that all those bribes (excuse me, campaign contribution) to the Bush Campaign have had no affect on your decision to softball the penalties for Microsoft. Your boss, the Attorney General serves at the pleasure of President Bush! I bet the professional staff is just livid. This is just another case where campaign contributions (bribes that have been deemed legal by the politicians) have affect a major government decision. Why not ask us to believe in Santa Claus or the Tooth Farie?
